

Another Rocking Event For Charity

More than 700 industry folk packed into BB King Blues Club and Grill in New York last week to jam to tunes belted out by some of their colleagues. The second annual Hedge Fund Rocktoberfest featured live performances from about 50 musicians drawn from the hedge fund industry. The hours of rock 'n' roll helped raise over $100,000 for A Leg To Stand On, an organization that helps children with limb disabilities in developing countries.

Attendees danced and gathered around the stage to support the bands, which included The Subscribers, MooreCaps, Aged Inventory, Junkyard Dogs, Audio Fiction, the Hedgetones and The Cause. The bands are a mix of members from firms such as Lazard Asset Management, Moore Capital, Octagon Asset Management and Credit Suisse First Boston, among others.

The inaugural event was held last year at Planet Hollywood in New York and raised over $150,000 for the charity. A similar event is being planned for London next spring. For more photos please visit www.iialternatives.com.

Mimi Ferraro of Audio Fiction belts it tunes while Katherine Fong plays olin.

▼ Members of Aged Inventory take the stage.

◀ Aged Inventory doesn't miss a beat as the band performs new and classic rock tunes.

▼ Alan Oppici, of Credit Suisse First Boston and lead singer of Aged Inventory, croons to the crowd.

▲ Mario Manna, of the MooreCaps, jams on guitar.

Barbara Bootz, a singer with the MooreCaps, serenades fans.

▲ The Subscribers perform.

◀ Tim Wheeler, lead singer of The Subscribers, rocks out.

The Subscribers, who recently released their first CD, rocked the house.

