ROCKING FOR PROSTHETICS

Traders from Wall Street to Stamford, Connecticut, descended on B.B. King Blues Club & Grill in New York recently for “The Second Annual Hedge-Fund Rocktoberfest,” which featured the musical stylings of several trading-industry stalwarts. The place was jammed — more than 700 tickets were sold, including a block of 60 to CSFB alone.

Proceeds benefited A Leg to Stand On, a charity that provides surgery and prosthetic limbs to needy Third World children. The event raised more than $100,000. Featured acts included MooreCaps, made up of traders from Moore Capital Management, and Audio Fiction, with Mark O’Toole, a project consultant at RiskMetrics Group, on drums.

Audio Fiction has nabbed considerable attention lately. The 2004 release of its EP Songs in the Key of Orange Alert caused a stir at the Republican National Convention. Meanwhile, Katherine Fong, a violinist for the New York Metropolitan Opera, recently joined the group on violin and backing vocals.
